Environmental pollution is a serious threat to our children's health. Air pollution can cause respiratory problems, heart disease, and even cancer. Climate change is leading to more extreme weather events, which can cause injuries and death. And water pollution can contaminate our drinking water, which can lead to a variety of health problems.

The good news is that there are things we can do to protect our children from these threats. Protecting Our Children In An Age Of Environmental Crisis provides clear and concise information about the risks that children face and offers practical advice on how to reduce their exposure to these risks.

This book is a must-read for parents who want to learn how to:

- Reduce their children's exposure to air pollution
- Prepare for the effects of climate change
- Protect their children from water pollution
- Create a healthy home for their children
